

Billy Matthews Quest Nutrition OGSM

Objective Establish Quest as the preeminent lifestyle nutrition brand by expanding household penetration and positioning our brand to own the “good cheating” position in healthy snacking
Goals 1. Increase U.S. household penetration from 15 to 25% and unaided awareness from 12% to > 20% 2. Grow total dollar sales by 20% and increase share of protein bar category by 5 percentage points
Strategies	Initiative	Measures
Codify and consistently activate a singular brand position around “indulgence without Compromise”	Develop formal brand playbook aligning internal and agency work around one core position (“Indulgence without Compromise”). Launch fully integrated “It’s Basically Cheating” campaign across streaming, social, and retail. Align packaging and in-store displays to reinforce indulgent visual cues alongside macro callouts.	Unaided awareness exceeds 20% (quarterly brand tracker). Brand consideration increases +25%. ≥60% of promotion messaging contains references to notions of “cheating without guilt”.
Select new products based on conduciveness to a “flip the macros” approach	Allocate majority of media and trade budget toward chips and confection SKUs. Launch limited time “Cheat Drop” indulgent flavors in chips/candy to drive trial and urgency. Secure expanded shelf placement for chips in mainstream snack aisles (not just nutrition aisles).	Chips & confection sales grow +30% YoY. Non-bar formats reach ≥30% of total sales.
Increase penetration by positioning Quest for everyday snack occasions while preserving performance credibility	Develop occasion-based creative highlighting workday, travel, and afternoon snacking moments. Expand sample pop-ups in high-traffic non-gym environments (e.g., offices, college campuses). Maintain and elevate select Questlete partnerships to maintain fitness credibility and core “Mr. Olympia” base	Household penetration reaches 25%. Repeat purchase rate increases 5% Buy rate per household increases YoY
